

Describe the activity under assessment:

Online lectures, also called online classes, organised by the Cambridge Dancers' Club (CDC) during the Covid19 pandemic is assessed. The general CDC risk assessment as published on the CDC website (<https://www.cambridgedancers.org/>) applies. Only additional risks due to the ongoing Coronavirus pandemic and the virtual nature of the activity are assessed in this document.

Furthermore, our privacy policy as published on the CDC website (<https://www.cambridgedancers.org/>) applies for all information collected.

At the time of writing the following regulations apply: <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2020/684/regulation/5/made>

All members are encouraged to observe the governmental guidelines as outlined in the link below at any time: <https://www.gov.uk/coronavirus>

List of significant hazard(s)	Description of what could go wrong, who is affected and how	Is the risk high, medium or low?	Existing and/or intended control measures	Any further actions needed, who will carry them out and when
People dancing / following along the instructor during the presentation / lecture.	People could trip or hit themselves by accident without a first aider nearby. This risk gets amplified by unsuitable dancing conditions like hazards due to the environment or unsuitable clothing and shoes. The risk of general medical emergencies unrelated to dance remains as well.	Medium	People are asked to assess their environment and circumstances and to remove any hazards where possible. If no suitable dance environment can be established, the participant is kindly asked to refrain from following along and just listen, watch and ask questions. People are advised to have a second person nearby in case of emergency. If no person is available, people are advised to turn their video on so that the instructor can see if any person is having an emergency and can initiate suitable steps for help.

			All lecturers are required to have suitable insurance. All risks not stemming from mistakes of the lecturer will be on the participants own responsibility. This includes but is not restricted to the choice of their environment and if they want to follow along or not. The club commits to raising awareness for possible risks and unsuitable conditions, however cannot provide liability for their mitigation due to the nature of online teaching.
